Department Updates

Tech Support Personnel Change

Most of you would know that Jeremiah would be leaving Arts & Sciences and moving to Shared computing services on campus. We will miss him but on the other hand wish him good luck for his endeavor.
His last date would 4th March and to provide technical support to your areas we are bringing in Matthew Kilbride (Matt).

Matt is a great tech support guy and is equally responsive and technically sound. He had been working for our Burnett and Bessey buildings and in the past few months took over Advising and Communication studies.

Matt would be around the next week and meet you all. If there are any pending things from Jeremiah's side please feel free to let Matt know. As part of the off-boarding process, if there are any keys or equipments from your department under his possession, please make sure that we have closed all loops.

You will all still send ticket requests to <oldfathersupport@unl.edu>
For reference. Matt's email address is mkilbride2@unl.edu.

As always, I appreciate your patience during this transition and we will make sure that none of the departments are being affected by this change.

If you have questions or concerns, please feel free to call me at 2-7327 or email me at drashti@unl.edu

To: UNL Faculty and TA's

Hello,

To allow room for incoming summer and fall titles and to meet publisher returns deadlines, the University Bookstore will begin returning spring textbooks to the publishers on March 3rd.

We understand that many students buy books as they are needed throughout the semester. With this in mind, please let us know of any titles that you or your students will still need to have available beyond this time, given the structure of the class. Let us know which titles we need to keep shelved and for how long. It would also be helpful to let students know that textbooks will be returned next week to give them the opportunity to obtain any that they may still need.

Please feel free to contact the textbook department at 2-7313.

Thank you.
