Digital Humanities Bootcamp
This 2-day DH Bootcamp will begin with project showcases to acquaint everyone with what is possible and help you decide what topics you are interested in. Concurrent sessions exploring specific topics will give you hands-on experience with a variety of useful tools. Topics include: 3D modeling, mapping, metadata, archive building, network analysis, and text analysis.

The DH Bootcamp will take place at the University of Nebraska—Lincoln from April 8-9, 2015, just prior to the Nebraska Forum on Digital Humanities hosted by the Center for Digital Research in the Humanities. Registration is required but free of charge thanks to support from the University of Nebraska’s Department of History and History Graduate Students’ Association.

Registration for the bootcamp is available at http://dhbootcamp.wordpress.com, and closes on Friday, March 20, 2015. Space is available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

If you have further questions, contact Rebecca S. Wingo and Jacob K. Friefeld at dhbootcampunl@gmail.com.
Early Modern Women Conference

The program for Attending to Early Modern Women 2015, “It’s About Time” has been set and registration is open. The conference, to be held June 18-20 in Milwaukee, features a keynote address by Prof. Fran Dolan, UC-Davis, “It’s about Time and Terroir: Gender and the Story of English Wine,” plus 12 plenary talks and 44 workshops. There will also be a special pre-conference workshop at the Newberry Library, Wednesday June 17.

The registration form, hotel reservation information, and provisional program can all be found at http://www4.uwm.edu/letsci/conferences/atw2015/registration.cfm

Spring Library Workshop

Feb 19, 3pm, CITY RM 110:
Copyright, Fair Use and Author’s Rights

Copyright is a battlefield, and an author’s control over his/her own work can easily become collateral damage or go missing in action. Many publishers believe they have an inherent right to own the intellectual property arising from your grant-funded research and to live off the earnings of written works that you had little choice but to give them for free or pay them to publish.

In this session you will learn more about U.S. Copyright Law, Author’s Rights, and protecting your Intellectual Property. Faculty members Paul Royster and Sue Gardner will speak on Copyright, Fair Use, and Author Rights. You will learn how to make copyright law work in your favor: what to do, what to avoid, when to push back, and when to run away and live to fight another day.

Brian Horowitz

Your former colleague, now a professor of Russian and Jewish Studies at Tulane University will be giving a talk titled “Zionism on the Eve of World War II: Jabotinsky, Zionism and the Nazis”

February 19th at 7 pm
Colonial Room A, City Union
We invite you to join us for a presentation including a question and answer session with reception to follow; event is open to the public.

Professor Lewis has been working with an undergraduate research team to develop a large digital project titled “Women and Charity in Spain 1786-1941.” This project is a digital exhibition tracing women’s charity from the late Enlightenment period through the beginnings of the Franco dictatorship via text and image displaying the trajectory of women’s charitable work.
